

| | | |
|---------|---|--|
| DODGE |  | |
| SINISCW |  | |
| ZAEWA |  | |
| TINTWM |  | |
| RUPSET |  | |

Q: What did the marine biologist go as to the philosophy department's Halloween party?

Unscramble (Unscramble each clue. Take the letters that appear in the circles to unscramble for the final message!)

[illegible]

Picross (see prev issue or Google for rules)

THE DEEP END

RAVE: Curbs are hard. Fortunately we all now have one less concrete obstacle in our lives thanks to the partial demolition of the monstrous curb on the north side of the Burke and subsequent opening of a beautiful pathway to upper campus. Hallelujah!

RAVE: The BC smoke finally cleared! I can see the sun again!

RANT: aaaand now it's raining ash.

RAVE: Agua Verde's seamless service after a fire almost no one knew about this summer. #lit

RAVE: Bike Benefits BINGO. If you didn't do it this year and you like biking for free stuff (aka beer and baked goods), make sure to do it next summer.

RANT: Not enough rants! This zine is too upbeat, not edgy enough.

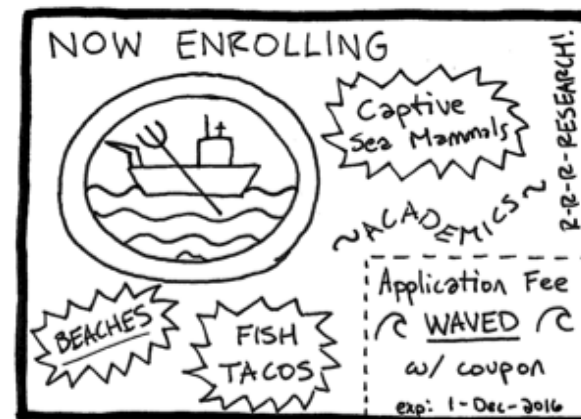

Raves? Rants? Drawings? Contributions?
WE WANT IT ALL!
touchtankzine@gmail.com

Vending Machine price:  rating:

What. A. Nightmare. First of all, it cost me $40 just to park! The incompetent attendant gave me the usual array of excuses: "it's a game day," "I just work the til," "please let go of me!" THE NERVE. But I'd heard the hype and wouldn't be deterred by some chump in purple. I was initially impressed by the machine's credit/husky card reader but, being a purist, I had come prepared with my bag of coins...only to find it wouldn't take my Eisenhowers or silver dollars! I mean, really?? Perhaps it was for my own good. The menu looked uninspired and derivative. On to the next one.

Now moderately active on Twitter:
@touchtankzine

BATHROOM OF THE WEEK (BOTW)
Ocean Teaching Building 2nd Floor mens

Aqua Verde price:    rating:

Can't get a reservation at Fridge? Mosey on down to Agua Verde where the sun is always shining and the salsa bar always has green, chipotle, and spicy. And if that's not enough you can ask for the secret habanero salsa that is so hot it could literally start a fire. While you might say, "I've been to Agua Verde too many times", you can't beat the breakfast burrito (served until noon) or their famed dish, the mangodilla. No, it isn't godzilla's South American cousin, it's a quesadilla with mangos (recommended salsa: spicy). So come on down (if the elevator will make it to the first floor), sit outside, and have a nacho. What else is nearby? Hospital food?

Pro: Best coffee outside of Justin's office
Con: guaranteed to run into your advisor

Rotunda price: rating:

The Rotunda is my go to spot for a hot lunch near OSB. Cheaper than Agua Verde and better than the Vista, it features a salad bar, a pasta bar, a rotating daily special, and a Starbucks. The ambience is too sanitary to be truly appetizing, but comforting in a surrounded-by-medical-professionals-on-break way. You're always within arm's reach of help if you choke on your chorizo or have a seizure at the salad bar. Beyond that, everything tastes totally acceptable for the price and the convenience keeps me coming back.

Honey Bucket would've sufficed.

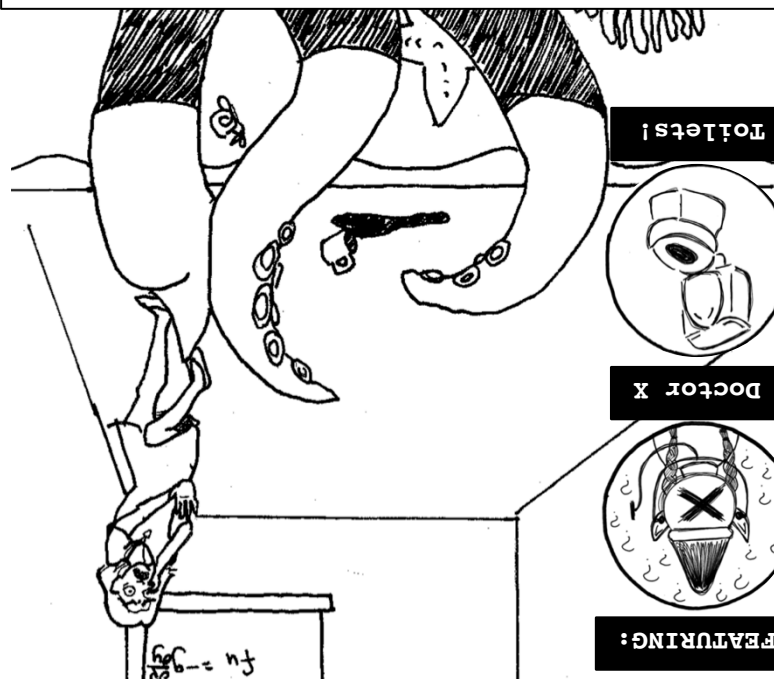

But the dream is real. What I found was pure monastic mind-melting bliss. A sanctuary from the jaws of inquiry, a single stall with a Farmer's Almanac chained to the wall. Floor to ceiling mirrors reflecting myself ad infinitum. I stared back at me in search for answers. I felt it was happening. Off in the distance, 300 mi from the Oregon coast, Axial Seamount erupted below the sea's surface. Alvin its only witness.

Then, turning down the hall, I saw him. A towering man with a cowboy hat cashmere-merino wool blend turtleneck combo. Sophisticated, yet different. He gripped my hand with rings on his fingers and asked, "Who are you?" I told him.

"Come back anytime, not just to use the bathroom."

```
Zen: ∞
Mirrors: Yes
Privacy: 10/10
Stall Gap: 5cm
TP: 4-ply
Reading Material: 10/10
```

Feat. E. Myers, C. Nuyen, M. Showalter

| | |
|------------|--------------------------------|
| Sept. 2017 | Episode 2: It came from the... |
|------------|--------------------------------|

kelp  Find lunch | Near OSB

Fridge price:    rating:

Who knew you could get a monosyllabically named institution that checks the boxes of an underlit hipster bar with none of the travel? Say hello to Fridge – a café that’s shaking things up as the first modern instrument in MSB since 1694.

Upon first approach it's obvious this café puts in effort to achieve the right ambience. You'll notice a sign designed to dissuade the uncool: "No food or drink," it says, with an imposing red streak thrust across an ironic milk carton and sandwich.

Once you're inside, check out the preserved krill, brined to perfection and served with an artistry reserved for only the most gentrifying restaurants: not on a plate, but in a test tube. Or, if you're vegetarian, the algal cultures – they're to diatom for.

Out for drinks instead of nosh? Don't expect fancy cocktails. Fridge serves only one drink: an IPA (isopropyl alcohol) that cuts your throat as if to say "I came to grad school for a PhD, but all I got was depressed." Go easy – they hit you quick. Overall we say – next time you're in MSB, open the door to Fridge.

June 21, 1931

Dear [REDACTED],

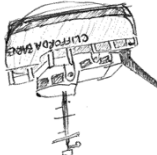

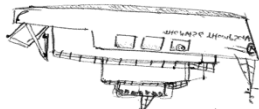

With efforts to dredge a canal connecting Lake Washington and Lake Union reaching completion by the end of the summer, Portage Bay will serve as a most suitable location for the University's Oceanographic Laboratories. We are working at great pace to address your concern about the region given the previous events. A new lacquer is being developed in the chemistry department, and is undergound laboratory to be applied to all locally cut alder and maple.

Captain Thomas G. Thompson
United States Army
Chemical Warfare

Dr. X

ALL events, people and places described in the following are undoubtedly real and actually took place.

WHERE'S THE _____ ?

RV Thomas G. Thompson
Still being refitted! Should be home Oct 17

Elevator
Rumors are of death will be striking it in the coming weeks, so hide your first born children!

Barnes
RV Clifford A.

Not scheduled for anything, so presumably it's hanging out in the dock. You should go check.